Product Description

For use with Life/form® Intramuscular Injection Simulator (LF00961U).

This is the clearest naming error yet — worth fixing before anything else gets touched on this page.

"für" is German for "for," and it's stuck in the product title. The page title, URL slug, H1, and meta title all read "Replacement Muscle für 1005586" — a leftover from an unlocalized German-language product feed (likely Nasco's European catalog) that never got translated when this was imported. On an India-facing English site, this reads as a typo or broken product name to any buyer who doesn't happen to know German. The product name should simply be "Replacement Muscle for 1005586" (or better, a properly descriptive English title — see below).

Replacement Muscle Pad — Refresh Kit for Intramuscular Injection Simulator 1005586

The Replacement Muscle Pad (Item No. LF00963U, 0.05 kg) by Nasco Healthcare, USA is the designated replacement muscle component for the Life/form® Intramuscular Injection Simulator (Item No. LF00961U). It lets institutions refresh the injection surface on their existing IM injection trainer without purchasing a full replacement unit.

Why this matters for a busy skills lab: the muscle tissue layer on any intramuscular injection trainer takes direct, repeated needle contact across a term's worth of student practice. As that surface wears, injection feel and puncture resistance degrade, reducing training realism. A replacement muscle component extends the working life of the base simulator at a fraction of the cost of a new unit.

Why Buy from SEM Trainers? Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Which simulator does this fit? A: The Life/form® Intramuscular Injection Simulator, Item No. LF00961U. Confirm you have this exact base unit before ordering.

Q: How often should the muscle be replaced? A: Replacement frequency depends on usage volume — high-throughput labs running many students through repeated injection practice will need to replace it more often than lower-volume settings. Contact our team if you'd like guidance based on your class sizes.
