Product Description

Skin as a replacement for the multipurpose venous training arm 1018438

Two field gaps worth flagging together: no weight field at all (not even blank — just absent, like "One Year Injection Training Arm") and no brand/Make field — this MPN format (S402.813.M) matches the same "S4xx"-prefix pattern we saw on the One Year Injection Training Arm (S406.M), so there's a reasonable chance both are the same unnamed manufacturer's product line. Still not confirming a guess — worth checking both together against your supplier records, since solving one may solve the other.

Replacement Skin — For Multipurpose Venous Training Arm 1018438

The Replacement Skin for Multipurpose Venous Training Arm (Item No. 1017820, MPN: S402.813.M) by [CONFIRM MANUFACTURER] is the designated replacement skin for the Multipurpose Venous Training Arm (Item No. 1018438). It restores the venipuncture practice surface on an existing training arm without requiring a full unit replacement.

Why this matters for a busy skills lab: the skin on a multipurpose venous training arm absorbs repeated needle insertion across a term's worth of student practice at common venous access sites. As it wears, the tactile realism of palpation and puncture degrades even though the arm's underlying vein structure is still functional. Replacing just the skin extends the working life of the arm at a fraction of the cost of a new unit.
