Product Description

Replacement veins for SMASH Advanced Patient Training Arm (1019645)

Another confirmed match — this closes the loop nicely. This item number (1020609) appears exactly in that same garbled 3B Scientific comparison table from the Portable Hand Trainer page, listed as the veins replacement for the "SMASH Advance Patient Training" arm (Item No: 1019645, W45014, MPN S402100rm). That's now three products in a row (this one, the earlier skin set, and likely the multipurpose venous arm skin) all tracing cleanly back to 3B Scientific via that same table — strong enough now to treat as confirmed rather than a lead, though a quick catalog check is still good practice before publishing brand claims.

Also worth noting: like a couple of earlier pages, this one uses the generic WooCommerce placeholder

The Replacement Veins (Item No. 1020609, 0.3 kg, MPN: S402.100.810) are the designated replacement vein component for the SMASH Advanced Patient Training Arm (Item No. 1019645) — by 3B Scientific [confirm against catalog before publishing]. They restore the venous structure on an existing SMASH arm without requiring a full unit replacement.

Why this matters for a busy skills lab: the SMASH Advanced Patient Training Arm supports a wide range of venous access techniques, and the vein structures underneath the skin take the most direct wear from repeated needle insertion across a term's worth of practice. Replacing just the veins — rather than the full skin-and-vein assembly — lets institutions target the specific component that's degraded, keeping replacement costs proportional to actual wear.
